BIO

Hannah Robinett is a conceptual artist with a diverse portfolio encompassing drawing, screen printing, painting, and murals. Her artistic vision is fueled by a profound exploration of phrases, words, spirituality, beauty, and personal experiences. Her work is often minimal but far from meaningless in its execution. As a former interface designer in New York City for 15 years, graphic design and color theory are often recognized throughout her work. Robinett's work has been shown in solo and group shows nationally and internationally. She lives and works in Brooklyn, New York.
